Though in his 76th year, H. L. Knight, Covena, Ga., was recently cured of a severe and painful kidney trouble. He says: "I had to get up too often at night, and my back ached terribly. But after taking two bottles of Foley Kidney Pills my backache is cured, the secretions have cleared up, and Foley Kidney Pills have given me more relief than anything I have ever taken." Sold by Franklin Drug Co.

Arnett-Mock.

Mr. J. L. Mock and Miss Vern Arnett were united in marriage Sunday morning at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. T. J. Cobb. The young couple are residents of the vicinity of Statesboro and have scores of friends who extend best wishes.

There is a man in Hiltonia, Ga., whose release from pain and suffering is due to Foley Kidney Pills. He recommends them: "I suffered with kidney trouble recently and had awful pains in my back. I got a bottle of Foley Kidney Pills and after taking them I am entirely cured and cheerfully recommend them to all." Sold by Franklin Drug Co.

Infant of Mr. Simmons.

The infant of Mr. and Mrs. Clay Simmons died last Thursday, after an illness of several weeks with infantile troubles. The burial occurred Saturday at the East Side cemetery, and the services were conducted by Rev. J. F. Eden.

There are people in this town who unwittingly neglect a "mere cold", though they would not otherwise expose their children or themselves to danger. Yet a cold neglected may develop into contagious diphtheria, bronchitis, or pneumonia. Use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound promptly for it stops coughs quickly and cures colds. It contains no opiates and is safe for children. Sold by Franklin Drug Co.

Akins-Carlidge.

Mr. H. E. Akins and Miss Ola Akins were united in marriage at 3 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Rev. T. J. Cobb, who officiated. The bride is a daughter Mr. J. P. Akins, of Pulaski. Mr. Carlidge has resided in the 48th district for a number of years, but is now a resident of Statesboro.

Mrs. J. H. Tinley, Waynesboro, Ga., suffered for years with rheumatism and kidney and bladder trouble. "I have taken several different kinds of medicine but got no relief until I took Foley Kidney Pills, which have cured me. I think them the best remedy for kidney and bladder trouble and for rheumatism." Sold by Franklin Drug Co.

Martin-Wilson.

At the home of the officiating minister, Rev. T. J. Cobb, on Sunday morning, 5th instant, Mr. J. L. Wilson and Mrs. Ella Martin were united in marriage. The bride is a daughter of the late J. V. Lee, of the 47th district, and has resided in Statesboro for the past few months. Mr. Wilson is a prosperous farmer of the 48th district.

Mrs. J. M. Findley, route No. 2, Lyons, Ga., was relieved from a severe pain by the use of Foley Kidney Pills. "Some time ago I had trouble with my bladder and suffered much pain. I took Foley Kidney Pills and they cured me." Foley Kidney Pills will also cure backache, rheumatism, kidney and bladder ailments, and all urinary irregularities. Sold by Franklin Drug Co.

Meeting at the Methodist Church Still Going on

The revival service commenced on Sunday last week at the Methodist church, is still in progress, and will continue through the week as at present planned.

Rev. O. B. Chester, of Americus, is assisting the pastor in the services, and his ministry is bearing fruit in a revived condition among the members, as well as a number of accessions to the church.

He is a forceful preacher, with a most convincing manner, and the congregations are constantly growing. Services are being held twice daily, at 10 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.

AN OLD CHURCH CHOIR.

The Performance That Fascinated a Juvenile Spectator.

Just what benefits accrued to very young persons of an earlier day from compulsory attendance on many church services it would be hard to determine. Some "lasting memories" at any rate, remained with Edmund Clarence Steadman of the Norwich town meeting house, to which as a wee boy he trudged in care of his aunts three times each "Sabbath day." Those parts of the service and surroundings that stuck in the childish mind are amusingly told in Mr. Steadman's "Life and Letters."

That choir could be heard in New York—twenty-five men and twenty-five women, trebles, basses, seconds and altos—males on one side, females on the other.

They sang through their noses. There was no doubt that they sang with their lungs. The women carried the air. Those who fell a little short in style were scored as seconds. The basses sang no air at all, and the altos soared off by themselves on a high scale of flats.

Simon Huntington, the great-grandson of Washington's aid-de-camp, was as straight as an arrow and a fine man. It afforded me the greatest pleasure to watch his Adam's apple during his participation in the service.

There never was an Adam's apple before that had such a wonderful range. It worked up and down like a human pump handle. It was always on time. It descended so low that to dream it would rise again seemed hopeless. Then when all seemed lost it reappeared, slowly, grandly, with a masterful steadiness which left no doubt but that it could have gone on rising through eternity, if so it pleased.

The meeting house had a round dome of a sounding board in the middle of it. The pews were square, with seats, as I recall it, round two sides. My aunts had wooden and brass foot stools, and we children sat round on footstools on the floor. Of course we could not see anything when seated.

At the time I went away to college I am sure that there could not have been a furnace in the church, for at Yale I recall my pleasure and interest in the registers from which the heat rose.

Icebergs.

The great breeding place of icebergs is western Greenland. The mountains of the belt of Greenland are everywhere penetrated by deep arms of the sea, which are terminated by perpendicular walls of huge glaciers. All of these glaciers are making their way to the ocean, and as their ends are forced out into the water they are broken off and set adrift as bergs. The sizes of the pieces thus broken off vary, but a berg 200 to 300 feet in height and whose length may be from 300 to 500 yards is considered to be of ordinary size in the arctic. The volume is, of course, lessened as the berg gets farther south.

Says Cotton Crop Can Be Only 60 Per Cent

Atlanta, May 9.—Tom G. Hudson, former commissioner of agriculture and gubernatorial candidate, said yesterday that the cotton crop in Georgia could hardly be more than 60 per cent of the crop last year.

Mr. Hudson's predictions are based on observations made recently in a tour around the state. He said that never in his memory have the farmers been as unfortunate with spring planting as this season. "I don't believe that more than 60 per cent of the crop that was planted last year will get into the ground this season, and with the poor weather the farmers have had for preparation, I can't see how the crop will be more than half of that of 1911."

NEW CALENDAR ADDS 13TH MONTH TO YEAR

PROPOSES TO MAKE MONTHS OF EQUAL LENGTH

Washington, D. C., May 10.—A conference of all nations will be held this summer at Geneva, Switzerland, to discuss suggestions for an international perpetual calendar. Many suggestions will be discussed, but the most interesting, because the most rational, seems to be that of Leroy S. Boyd.

The calendar, as he would reform it, shows a year of 13 months, 28 days to the month, and one extra day, New Year's, not counted in any month, but observed as a universal holiday. This day comes naturally before the first of January, and is neither Saturday nor Sunday nor any other day of the week, but simply New Year's day.

Every month contains exactly four weeks, begins on Sunday and ends on Saturday. The thirteenth month is called Solaris and is inserted between June and July.

Mr. Boyd provides for leap year by an extra day each fourth year, coming after the end of December, and not counted as a day of the week nor of the month, but merely an extra holiday, known as Leap Year day.

The year 1916 may be taken as an illustration, for it would be an ideal year to commence the reformed calendar, as according to the present arrangement it will begin on Saturday, which, under Mr. Boyd's plan, would become Jan. 1, 1916.

The advantages of this reformed calendar are obvious. Each month has the same number of days. Every month and every week begins on Sunday and ends on Saturday. The same date in each month falls on the same day of the week, a printed calendar will be identical, and every year will be the same as any other.

MILLION YOUNG SHAD FOR RIVERS OF FIRST DISTRICT

ON FISH

Washington, D. C., May 19.—Congressman Edwards was in conference with United States Fish Commissioner Bowers today. He is assured by the bureau of fisheries that one million shad will be sent to Georgia for the Savannah, Ogeechee and Altamaha rivers at an early date. This will be more than four shad for every man, woman and child living in the First district.

Mr. Edwards contends that the supply in the streams named have been greatly depleted. He has been working since he has been in congress to get a fish hatchery for his district, but as yet has not been able to get the bill through. The commissioner of fisheries is heartily in favor of a shad hatchery on the coast of Georgia, but Mr. Edwards did not want to wait until a hatchery could be provided for and installed and he has taken time by the forelock and arranged to get the shad immediately. They will probably be sent down from a hatchery in Alabama sound in North Carolina during the next week or ten days, and a million little shad will be planted in the three rivers named.

Those for the Savannah river probably will be put in at a point opposite Sylvania. Those to be put in the Ogeechee probably will be put in at a point south-east of Millen, while those for the Altamaha river probably will be put in at a point in Tattnall county. This should mean a greatly increased supply of shad for the people of that section next season.

Mr. Edwards is making a hard fight to get the shad hatchery bill favorably reported upon by the house committee. Senator Bacon's bill already has passed the senate and is now pending before the committee on merchant marine and fisheries. Mr. Edwards thinks there is little doubt but that the report will be favorable and he hopes to get the bill through during this session.

The president no doubt will sign the bill because it is understood that the department of commerce and labor strongly urged the establishment of a shad hatchery on the coast of Georgia.

Special Notice.

This is something you don't have every day and probably you never have seen it before in Statesboro—pictures almost given away. The Man From Montana

By Michael J. Porter

(Copyright, 1919, by Associated Literary Press)

At home, in Montana, he was the Hon. John Hope, because he had been a member of the legislature. In Denver and Chicago they called him Colonel Hope, because he had a big herd of cattle. In New York what few knew him called him Jack, because he was a good fellow. He was twenty-six years old and a bachelor.

Jack Hope had turned a great many cattle into greenbacks and wanted a change of scenery. He exchanged the high mountains of Montana for the flat surface of the Atlantic coast. He chartered the yacht Wanderer and voyaged to South America. It was while returning that he was stampeded. One morning, as the yacht was approaching the Thousand Islands, on her way to make the harbor of Key West, two boats, filled with what was supposed to be shipwrecked mariners, were found in her path and making signals of distress. As they came alongside it was seen that there was a girl among them, and the gallant Mr. Hope stopped forward to raise his hat and do the honors.

The girl was Miss Nina Belotti, Cuban born, educated in the states and her father in business in New York and a member of the Cuban Junta. She had set sail on a fast schooner to deliver a cargo of arms to the patriots, but a sudden squall had driven the craft ashore on one of the outer islands. Unless the yacht could be induced to transfer the cargo to her hold and deliver it on the Cuban coast the patriots must lose all they had fought for.

Miss Belotti related that at a sort of council in the cabin and there were men in her eyes as she related. Colonel Hope had never seen a good-looking girl shed tears. His feelings were touched at once. He had not paid much attention to the Cuban struggle, but now he was immediately interested, and was about to offer his herd of 30,000 steers to the cause when the mate of the Wanderer entered the cabin to announce that the rescued man had overpowered the crew and taken possession.

"We had to do it, you see," explained the girl. "I feared you would not comply with my request."

"Of course we won't," shouted the captain as he sprang to his feet. "We'll fight for it! Colonel Hope, if we are caught by the Spaniards with munitions for the rebels every one of us will be shot!"

"Softly," replied the Hon. Hope, "in the first place, they're all ready captured us. In the next, I have decided to make the Cuban cause my own. In the third, here is a young lady appealing to us with tears in her eyes. The naval cavalry of old Montana can't go back on all these things."

"But, man—"

"Ta, ta," Miss Belotti, I am yours truly, and so is the yacht. Let your crew go ahead."

The Wanderer was headed for the stranded schooner and was within a few minutes of her and the cargo being transferred. The captain and mate ailed, but Colonel Hope was happy. During most of the time he walked the decks with Miss Belotti on his arm. When they were not walking they were lounging, and within three hours the girl had learned most all there was to know about Montana and the cattle business. At sundown the Wanderer stood away for the Cuban coast. There were no lights aboard when night fell. For hours she raced through the sea like a shadow, and whoever spoke did it in whispers. In the early morning hours the yacht put in to a bay, and the patriots came off to unload her.

The Wanderer could have got away by mid-afternoon, but she must be hidden from the Spanish patrolling gunboats till darkness came to give her a chance. Miss Belotti was to return with her. When the hour came for the dash it was found that three gunboats were lying off the bay, and the girl was told that she must seek safety in the lowest depths of the craft. There was sure to be firing.

"Not!" she replied. "I am not afraid. I am a woman, but I shall take chances with the rest."

"Good girl!" replied Colonel Hope. "I guess you will be as safe on deck as anywhere. Can't tell where their balls and shells are going to strike. It's all chance, anyway—the same as getting home after meeting a grizzly bear."

The pirate captain in charge had nerve. He headed straight out of the bay. If there was a collision the enemy should also go to the bottom. If fired on they must grin and bear it. Some of the men lay on the decks—others hid away below. Some crawled and others wept. The gunboats were lying in the path with their crews at the guns.

The Hon. Hope and Miss Belotti promanoeuvred and conversed in whispers. He told her still more about old Montana. He told of its mountain rivers—of its people—of its lonely life as a rancher—of cloud-bursts and stampedes—of—

And then came a hail from a gunboat to starboard, and another from astern to port. The yacht was running between the two. Then came the commands to fire, and the two promanoeuvred flares sank flat to the deck and let the shells scream above them. The wind of the guns swept over the crouching figures in gusts, and shell and ball and bullet screamed and shrieked. So for four or five minutes,

The Heroes of '61 and '65;

Sketch by Jere Howard

Having been selected at our last memorial service to write a biographical sketch of what has long since gone into history by historians, I don't feel that I am adequate to the emergency half a century after the actual transactions; but things of that character do not vanish from the mind as occurrences of a more common nature so easily, and become obscure as things of the past.

Before the war between the states, as it should properly be called, the farmers and common people of the country lived at home and boarded at the same place, and confidence was preserved as a noble virtue; but upon the heel of the war, circumstances changed and here I change cars.

When the veterans of that hard-ship, carnage and bloodshed met to celebrate the dawning of peace, their minds flash back to the awful scenery; they can shake hands, shed tears and thank God for the occasion. So much has been said and written, but no more than was due the noble soldier who left his farm and all, Putnam-like, to the care of his wife and children—more than can be contributed to the mothers, wives and daughters. The greatest of Adams' helpmates failed not to stand firm to the home and domestic affairs as the soldier in ranks, with outstretched arms and overjoyed hearts to welcome them on return.

The writer is incompetent to picture the scenery and feelings of that occasion.

Now, comrades, as they stood firm to us, by the most solemn vows and obligations in the presence of God, so let us not fall out by the way, but still remember that to them, and us to each other as the patriots of old, to meet and speak often one to another.

Notwithstanding the bravest soldiers that ever drew a sword, or the most thoughtful generals that ever marched at the head of an army, are often forgotten in our country's history, all because of their poverty, there is nothing to do but to follow the pages of history and there find fitting terms of praise for Lee and Jackson and many others, whose early days were of the greatest humbleness, but after their names in a meaning far greater than the wealth of nations and the coveted possession of millions, and that is to live in the hearts and minds of a great people forever.

H. E. Archer, a well known citizen of Westover, Ala., recommends Foley's Kidney and Tar Compound as perfectly safe and effective for children. "My little boy had an acute attack of bronchial trouble so severe he could not get out of bed for a week," he says. "The first dose or two of Foley's Kidney and Tar Compound relieved him and before he had used one fifty-cent bottle he was well." Sold by Franklin Drug Co.

Roosevelt says he will accept the nomination if tendered him—and then proceeds to take whatever precautions he thinks necessary in order to have it tendered to him.

Though in his 76th year, H. L. Knight, Covena, Ga., was recently cured of a severe and painful kidney trouble. He says: "I had to get up two often at night, and my back ached terribly. But after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Pills my backache is cured, the secretions have cleared up and Foley's Kidney Pills have given me more relief than anything I have ever taken." Sold by Franklin Drug Co.

TITANIC'S GRAVE IS AT BOTTOM OF THE OCEAN

(Louisville Courier-Journal.)

The popular impression seems to be that when a vessel sinks in deep water the expression "goes to the bottom" is not exact, because the density of the water at a great depth prevents the ship from actually sinking to the bottom. But the Scientific American says the Titanic really went to the bed of the ocean in water two miles deep. Pressure, according to this authority, has been confused with density, and the pressure at a depth of 2,000 fathoms is about 750,000 pounds a square foot.

The explanation is as follows: "Laboratory experiments have shown that it is almost impossible to compress water. It is evident that an object that would not float at the surface of the sea could not float at any intermediate point, but must sink to the bottom, for it could not displace a greater weight of water at the bottom than at the top. Any air-filled chambers or compressible matter in the vessel would be crushed in by the enormous pressure of the water, so that the displacement of the wreck would be growing less as it went down and it would be falling through the water at a corresponding acceleration. Even steel is more compressible than water, and consequently a solid block of this material would have greater specific gravity at the bottom of the sea than at the top."

The idea that there are many ocean vessels suspended in the dense water of the ocean between the surface and the bottom has been advanced, and widely accepted. But if the Scientific American is right, the Titanic must be one of many ocean steamers lying upon the bottom and crushed flat by the pressure of the water. Three-fourths of a million pounds of pressure upon each square foot would probably be sufficient to burst the closed water-tight compartments and buckle the steel skeleton of a steamer of the Titanic's size and strength.

GEORGIA MAY GET BIG APPROPRIATION FOR SAVANNAH RIVER

Washington, D. C., May 17.—The rivers and harbors bill, which carries over a million dollars for Georgia, nearly one-half of which is for Savannah river and harbor, is now in conference.

It has been passed by the senate and was added to in that body by some $8,000,000 or $10,000,000. Many have been uneasy about the final fate of the bill since so much was added in the senate for fear it would be out of proportion with the views of the house and of the president, and this would prevent it from becoming a law.

The conferees are now shaping the bill up and it is expected that great cuts will be made in the joint conference and it will come out of conference pruned down considerably.

Congressman Edwards, a member of this committee, stated today that the Savannah and other Georgia items will be retained in the bill in conference and that they will be retained in the bill as it will finally become a law.

The project to extend the Savannah harbor, which is of such vital importance to Savannahans, is provided for in the bill and will stick in, so Mr. Edwards is assured. With the pruning knife in evidence, many members of congress are uneasy about the items in the bill in which they have a personal interest, but Georgia has been fortunate in having a member on the committee in the house and having senators who have been active also in keeping the Georgia items intact.

Chairman Stephen M. Sparkman said today that he did not know how long the bill would be in conference or just what would be done, but that the conferees are anxious to get it out as soon as possible in order that the chances of the bill might not be at all hazarded.

$50,000 for Government Building in Statesboro

A Washington dispatch, discussing the probability of the adjournment of congress in June, in order to give the congressmen and senators an opportunity to attend the big conventions, says:

"A large number of the members, in fact, nearly all of them, are anxious for an early adjournment, but can't see how it can be effected. If adjournment is not in June, then a great many matters will come up after the conventions that were not scheduled for this session. Among these may be mentioned the public buildings bill. It was 'sleazetracked' for the sake of economy, in the democratic caucus over the vigorous protest of Chairman Morris Sheppard, Burnett of Alabama, Edwards of Georgia and many others. These same gentlemen are now watching an opportunity to get up the bill and put it through."

"If the public buildings bill is brought up it is understood that the First Georgia district will get its share. Statesboro has already been provided with a site and it is understood that Congressman Edwards has arranged to secure $50,000 for the building at Statesboro, and $10,000 for the site at Waynesboro."

FOLEY KIDNEY PILLS

FOR RHEUMATISM KIDNEY AND BLADDER

WHAT TO DO WITH TOM WATSON IS QUESTION UNDERWOOD LEADERS HAVE HARD PROPOSITION

Atlanta, Ga., May 15.—What to do with Thomas E. Watson is a question which is sorely puzzling the Underwood politicians. They cannot determine whether it were best to make of him a Jonah and toss him overboard in an effort to still the troubled waters of the political sea, or to boldly brave the storm and increase its intensity by sending him as a delegate to the Baltimore convention.

Those supposed to be well versed in the present political situation declare that the Underwood convention will most likely elect Mr. Watson to be a state-at-large delegate to Baltimore. It is apparent, however, that the opposition is strong and determined, and it is already certain that there will be a battle royal on the floor of the convention when the matter comes up.

Notwithstanding Clark Howell, "Rufe" Hutchens and other Underwood leaders are strenuously endeavoring to deliver to Tom the plum he covets, it becomes more and more evident that the rank and file of the delegates are against Watson. While Governor Brown, Clark Howell and Mr. Hutchens have publicly announced that they were in favor of giving Mr. Watson a place on the delegation to Baltimore, the silence of the leaders in Chatham, Bibb, Richmond, Hall, Wilkes and practically all the south Georgia counties must be reckoned as significant.

In fact, it is well known that many of the delegates to the state convention are vigorously opposing Watson. They look with alarm upon the movement to give democracy's arch enemy a leading part in the councils of the party. These delegates take the position that it is a disregard of the party's interests to entrust them to a man who has time and again bolted the party and its nominees, who for a score or more of years never lost occasion to vilify and libel every democratic leader, and who in recent years has turned his venom upon a Christian church and its membership and upon the missionary work of all denominations. They say to elect Watson a delegate to Baltimore would be a huge blunder, and to make him chairman of the Georgia delegation would be seriously embarrassing to the democrats of Georgia and the nation.

Watson's request that he be allowed to head the Georgia delegation has, it is said, created some consternation in Washington. Mr. Hutchens, manager of the Underwood campaign in Georgia, and one of those who has announced in favor of Mr. Watson, has been summoned post haste to the national headquarters, where the principal topic of discussion is, "What shall we do with Watson?"

It is rumored and generally believed that Congressman Underwood and his campaign high financier, Senator W. H. Bankhead, have been warned by democratic leaders that if Watson is made a delegate to the Baltimore convention serious complications will ensue—complications which in all probability will be fatal to the democratic chances for success with any candidate.

Governor Brown's apparently prompt and hearty endorsement of Watson to head the Georgia delegation at the national democratic convention has been a source of surprise and wonder to many. It should not have been. In the words made famous by a certain manufacturer of cereals, "there's a
